LEAGUE OF NATIONS TO SEEK TO AID WOMANKIND

Plan To Raise Consent Age—India, Siam And Japan Object

NEW QUESTION UP

Lithuania And Poles Now Come To Ask Decision As To Boundaries

(Reuter's Service)

Geneva, Sept. 19.—The Committee of the League of Nations dealing with the subject of the traffic in women and children has accepted a proposal in favor of adopting the draft of a revised Convention, with certain reservations regarding India, Japan and Siam, whose delegates stated it would be impossible in their countries to raise "the age of consent" from 16 to 21 years.

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Geneva, Sept. 19.—The Council of the League of Nations today examined the dispute between Poland and Lithuania regarding the town of Vilna. M. Hymans (Belgium), who has been conducting the negotiations for several months, explained the present situation to the members of the Council.

M. Hymans said he had made some alterations in the plans which were drawn up by him and approved by the Council last June. He emphasized that these alterations, which appeared necessary as the result of fresh conversations which began between the Polish and Lithuanian representatives at Geneva on August 26, were only improvements and simplifications and not a complete amendment of the original scheme.

M. Askenazy (Poland) said that Poland could not allow these alterations. The original project, he said, stipulated for the organization of Lithuania into a federal state with two cantons of Kovno and Vilna, but M. Hymans' improved scheme only stipulates for generous autonomy to be given to Vilna within the Lithuanian state.

M. Askenazy claims that Poland, not recognizing any right of Lithuania over Vilna, cannot allow the federation of Vilna with Lithuania after the fashion of the Swiss cantons.

M. Gervais (Lithuania) pointed out that all the trouble between Poland and Lithuania in regard to Vilna had been occasioned by the occupation of that town by General Zeligowski's forces and that Lithuania had made considerable concessions to Poland in order to keep the peace.

M. Hymans declared that the moment had come for the Council to settle the dispute. The Council, he pointed out, had heard both parties several times during the past few months as well as the special commission sent to Vilna and he considered that the time had come for the Council to give a decision in accordance with the Covenant. This decision would certainly not give entire satisfaction to both parties but he hoped that Poland and Lithuania would accept it in their own interests and in that of the peace of the world.

The Council will continue discussion of this question tomorrow.

NEAR SILESIAN SOLUTION

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Sept. 19.—The Agency Havas learns that the Upper Silesian problem, which has been submitted to the League of Nations Council, is in a fair way to a settlement.

The work of the Commission of Four is being carried out in very favorable circumstances. Each of the four reporters has undertaken to examine one aspect of the question and for this purpose has drawn up a series of questions to which the experts have already almost entirely replied.

There is reason to hope that the Council of the League will be able to give its opinion soon, possibly in the first fortnight of October.

MARCH OF EVENTS

BY BRUCE HOPPER

ENEMIES of the Washington conference are busy digging among the ruins of past treaties in search of diplomatic relics which will prove that history does not move forward, that the spirit of conciliation is as feeble as it was centuries ago, that humanity still stands under the suspended sword.

Some cynics, believing contempt indicates power, declare that great nations long accustomed to arrange their alliances in secret, with no consideration for other countries affected by these alliances, will continue to do so. Others see failure facing the conference for the reason that the United States rejected the League of Nations to which she gave birth.

Nevertheless, the Washington banquet table is being spread with new dishes hitherto unknown at international feasts. When Secretary Hughes suggests a menu which will bear out the ideals of unselfishness, introduced but effectually suffocated at the Paris conference, he embodies the American hope that appetites have changed, and that the new era in diplomacy can be ushered in at the first great conference of old powers in the new world.

THE answer to the critics is that the covenant of the League of Nations was the creation of ex-President Wilson, who was repudiated by the American people even before he defied tradition by going to the peace conference in person. The treaty-making power of the United States is divided between the Senate and the President, and America cannot be held guilty of refusing to accept her obligations when such agreements were made by an executive acting without consulting the Senate.

Ex-President Wilson chose to ignore that august body in order to urge acceptance of his Fourteen Points at Paris, with the result that the world soon learned by the Senate's rejection of the Versailles treaty that the source of power in America is the people, and not the president.

President Harding has removed all danger of that situation arising at the coming conference by inviting the Senate to send representatives. Two of the four delegates are Senators Lodge and Underwood.

ANOTHER happy indication is that the movement to pry open the doors of the conference is gathering head. By no other way can the death blow be given to old diplomacy, secret pacts, and that kind of protective agreement which permitted the Triple Alliance and the Triple Entente to tear the world asunder in 1914.

Wilson went to Paris armed with the high ideal, "open covenants openly arrived at," but he sacrificed the ideal to gain support for his covenant of the League of Nations. He submitted to secret conferences, and thereby deprived himself of the very strength which had given him leadership, the advocacy of publicity. Most of the decisions altering the destinies of small nations, and re-making the map of Europe, were reached in private conference between Clemenceau, Lloyd George and Wilson. No minutes were kept of those momentous conversations.

The world public has a right to know what takes place during the Washington conference, and a right to fix the responsibility for the acts agreed upon. Lord Robert Cecil has won a battle for wider publicity in the Council of the League of Nations, which victory may permit the world to learn something of the progress being made to untangle the Upper Silesian knot.

PERHAPS the greatest concession to the universal clamor for publicity was made last week when Japan was forced by Chinese public opinion to publish the compendium of the Shantung terms without waiting for China's consent to negotiate.

Japan's methods of making agreements with China in the past have been wielding the club behind closed doors, and the public did not realize the exact amount of tribute collected until the deed was done. It may be that Japan's pardonable haste is due to her anxiety to keep the Shantung affair off the talking list at Washington, or it may be that so many false versions leaked out in Peking that the Japanese found publishing the real terms more palatable than allowing them to be distorted.

"My Highest Hopes Are Centered On College," Wires J. D. Rockefeller Sr.

May All Who Enter It Be Fired With Spirit Of Self-Sacrifice, Is Wish Of Man Who Gave Millions To Build It

(Staff Wire To The China Press) Peking, Sept. 19 (7:45 p.m.).

"The new institution is to supplement and not supplant the medical work done by the missions and the government," says John D. Rockefeller, Jr., in handing over the plant to President Holton, head of the Peking Union Medical College. Mr. Rockefeller then delivered, with much feeling, a eulogy of his father, child of whose philanthropy the institution was, and read a telegram from Mr. John D. Rockefeller Sr. as follows:

"My highest hopes are centered upon the Peking Union Medical College. May all who enter it be fired with spirit of self-sacrifice and service. May it be an active contribution to the uplift and well-being of the Chinese nation."

CHINESE MUST DO IT. Resuming his address, Mr. Rockefeller Jr. said that only the Chinese nation could hope to cope with its own scientific and medical problems. The Westerner can only point the way. He looked forward, he said, to the day when the Chinese would occupy the largest place on the faculty and a large place on the board.

Operating expenses must be kept down, said Mr. Rockefeller, lest further like enterprises be discouraged. The first purpose of the institution must be education, research work and healing must be secondary.

He explained the Chinese type of architecture adopted for the buildings as being an effort to make the Chinese feel at home, thus expressing concrete friendliness and a desire to incorporate in the institution all that is best in oriental life.

"The descendants of the palace builders have put the supreme work of their lives in these buildings, thus setting an example to those who shall labor in them," said Mr. Rockefeller.

"The total cost of the plant, some five million gold dollars, merely emphasizes the spiritual side of the work."

COLLEGE DEDICATED. Mr. Roger S. Greene, director of the China Medical Board of the Rockefeller Foundation then dedicated the institution to the purpose of assisting to find a way to world peace by the investigation of social and biological issues arising between the white and oriental races.

By lifting the standards of oriental life it would help relieve the pressure brought to bear by

"Up To China Whether The Direct Negotiations Should Start And When"

—Obata

While gathering material for a series of articles on the Shantung Issue, recently Mr. J. E. Doyle of THE CHINA PRESS staff submitted eight questions to Mr. Obata, the Japanese Minister to Peking.

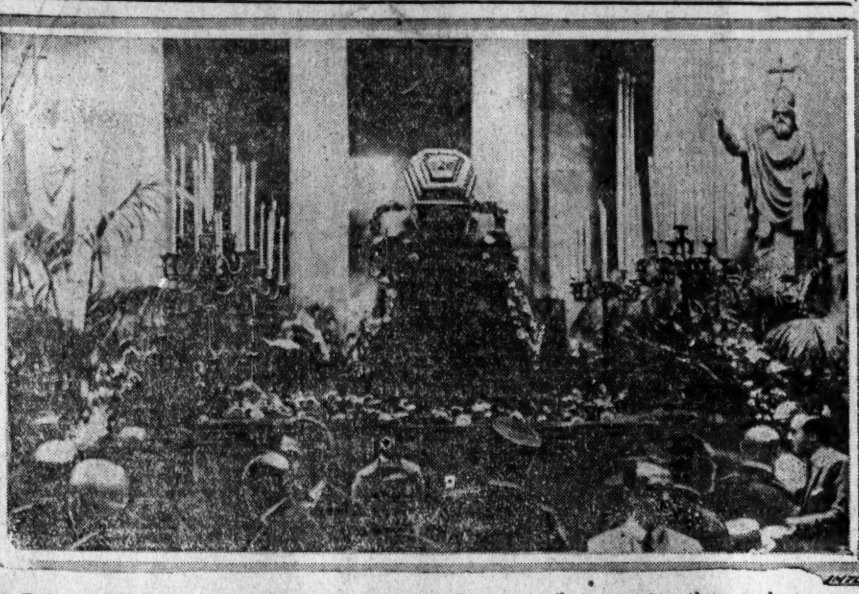

The answers received this office yesterday together with a covering letter from Mr. J. M. Tokugawa, the retiring secretary of the Japanese Legation, which expressed regret at the delay in answering the questions.

The letter also stated that shortly after the resumption of traffic on the Tientsin-Pukow Railway, following the floods, the Japanese Legation learned that the Japanese Government might present to China a new set of proposals about Shantung before long "and, in the circumstances we thought it better to wait until a proper time so that answers might not be out of date."

The letter closed: "Now that the proposals, which were made on September 7, have been published, we find ourselves in a position to send you the enclosed answers."

The questions and answers follow. (Q) Does Your Excellency expect that direct negotiation on Shantung will be begun or concluded before November 11?

JAPAN SAYS HER HEART'S CHANGED AS TO CHINESE

British Circles Wish It Would Change A Bit More, Press Says

(Reuter's Service)

London, Sept. 20.—The Morning Post says much satisfaction is felt in British circles in regard to Japan's latest offer to China concerning Shantung, though it is noted that Japan will not admit that the railway is a public utility.

The proposals are also considered as a further illustration of Japan's willingness to carry out the undertaking given to the British Legation at the Paris Peace Conference, ultimately to restore Shantung.

The opinion is also authoritative expressed that the British Government is willing to consider in the most practical and substantial manner any proposals which would tend to secure the independence and integrity of China.

FEAR CHINA'S ABILITY. Washington, Sept. 19.—It is understood that the conversations between Secretary of State Hughes and Baron Shidehara, the Japanese Ambassador to the United States, have resulted in an agreement on the Yap question which is satisfactory to both sides.

Nothing remains but formal approval to be given by Tokyo and the conferring upon Baron Shidehara of special powers to conclude the agreement. It seems that there is no reason to fear any hitch.

Not even the most sanguine believe it possible to settle the Shantung question before the Washington Conference meets; even were American opinion fully assured of the liberality of Japan's intentions there would remain the difficulty which China's internal divisions place in the way of any generally acceptable solution.

The fervent wish is expressed in high quarters that the factions in China might reach an agreement whereby a delegation representing the entire country could be sent to the Conference.

The opinion is expressed that the success or failure of the Conference on the political side depends not so much on the ability of the United States, Great Britain and Japan to reach an agreement with regard to their interests in the Pacific and Far East as on the ability of China to perform the part allotted her in any convention issuing from the deliberations of the Great Powers.

LLOYD GEORGE NOT TO GO. London, Sept. 19.—It is unlikely that Mr. Lloyd George will attend the Disarmament Conference at Washington.

He keenly desires to go but probably urgent home affairs will prevent him.

London, Sept. 19.—It is authoritatively stated that there seems to be every reason to believe that the German Government intends loyally to accept the decision of the Supreme Council to establish an international organization with a view to preventing unfair discrimination.

Chinese Soldiers Form Greatest Sitting Army

By Elsie McCormick

An acquaintance of ours with literary inclinations once remarked that when he returned home he intended to write a musical comedy based on a burlesque of the Chinese army. We hastened to assure him that it couldn't be done; it would be like trying to parody Mark Twain or the works of Irving Cobb. But we do believe that a musical comedy based on the Chinese army as it really is would be hailed in New York as the biggest burlesque of the year.

By a strange paradox of Fate, the least warlike nation in the world has the largest standing army. It is, it is known technically as a standing army, though practically every time we have seen it, it has been sitting down. We believe, too, that the Chinese army has won the world's record for long-range sleeping and that it also carries the palm for expert shelling, though the shells in question are usually the discarded overcoats of water-melon seeds.

SOCIABLE FELLOWS. As a soldier, the average Chinese would hardly rate 'excellent' on his report-card. His sociability and inherent desire to be democratic make discipline an unexplained eccentricity on the part of somebody who usually wears a khaki uniform, a waxed black moustache, and a few porcelain decorations cut from the pattern of a soup-plate.

Anyone who has ever heard a richa coolie talk back to a Chinese policeman can realize the trials of an officer in the Celestial army. Every command is regarded by the enlisted personnel not as an order but as a resolution offered to a debating society. If the Famous Light Brigade had belonged to the Chinese army, it would have stopped on the edge of the Valley of Death for a cup of tea, a few peanuts, some exercise for the canaries, and a little inquiry into the question of just who had blundered.

ANYTHING WILL DO. The equipment of the Chinese army is delightfully varied. Instead of the iron-bound formalism that kills sartorial initiative in most armies of the world, the Chinese soldier is given a scope for originality that would delight a Parisian designer or an anarchist.

Back in Szechuen, some of the troops wear stiff puttees with bare feet looking out coyly from the lower end. Some, having felt unduly burdened by rifles, deposited them in a pawnshop and now go about heavily armed with a one-hand-power fan. Others proclaim their military status only by a cap, the rest of their uniform having been traded for fighting crickets and replaced by civilian requisition.

One of the military commanders in Honan recently worked a great hardship on his troops by prohibiting them from carrying bird cages on the march. One can picture the stalwart Chinese soldier charging an enemy position with a rifle in one hand and a bird-cage in the other. Maybe when the action becomes hot, the soldier moves out the bird and occupies the cage himself, wearing it as a catcher might at a

MUTINY REPORT

Changsha Troops Out Of Hand Due To Unpaid Wage Says Wire

(Staff Wire To The China Press)

Hankow, Sept. 20 (6:50 p.m.).—Ichang was quiet throughout yesterday but fighting was resumed this afternoon with heavy firing near the White Temple. By nightfall the Northern troops were compelled to withdraw to their original lines.

The lines are now five miles from Ichang. The Northern troops have landed on the South bank of the river five miles down, which drew some firing on the part of the Szechuenese. But the landing was effected.

The Shuhun is still at Ichang and no preparations toward its departure for Hankow have been made. Wu Peifu is sticking to his original stand.

Word has come that the troops at Changsha have mutinied, the reason as given in the brief wire being that the troops asked for pay and when their back salary was refused, they at once got out of hand.

Early last night fighting was started by the Szechuenese at the right bank where some heavy fighting near the ridge took place. Some foreign ships were fired on this morning. British, Japanese and American gunboats were fired upon several times.

On going up the river the Robert Dollar was fired on from the right bank immediately after it got under way. The firing was increasing in volume and was continued as it proceeded on the upward journey from Ichang.

Three miles above Ichang the Szechuenese were firing from both sides of the bank, resulting in one Chinese being killed and another wounded. About 40 shots fell on board the vessel, and firing went on till the vessel nearly reached its anchorage. An armed guard was on board but it did not return the fire because the shooting party was invisible. It was also considered unwise to return fire in face of the heavy fighting going on. The captain of the vessel refused to return the fire in the absence of a gunboat escort.

FIRE ON BOATS.

The Szechuenese fired from the right bank on the Tungting of Butterfield and Swire and the Anlan of the Asiatic Petroleum Company as soon as these vessels were under way. After they proceeded, firing increased. Steamers now cannot continue running unless an escort system is instituted by the gunboats because firing on the steamers appears to be a part of the organized offensive scheme.

The British and Japanese consuls are trying to go on to Nantao in a foreign gunboat to interview Commander Liu Hsiang and urge him to stop firing. The British Senior Naval Officer is requested by General Wu Peifu to forward to Commander Liu Hsiang a telegram supposed to contain peace proposals. According to General Wu Peifu foreign lives and properties will be endangered if peace is not arranged.

IS IT PRECEDENT?

General Wu was told that every effort would be made to deliver the telegram. General Wu commanded the Shuhun which was flying the British flag. The British and Japanese Consuls and the naval commanders approached General Wu asking if this step was taken to establish a precedent.

General Wu replied that it was and the Shuhun accordingly was despatched to Hankow that very night to transport troops.

Wu said he would not alter his decision. He insisted that the Shuhun was a Chinese vessel and that it has been conveying troops and ammunition for the Szechuenese.

General Wu expressed his confidence in being able to hold Ichang. When requested to clear the Szechuen troops from the right bank, he said he hoped to do so within a week.

Don't Expect Much Good; Want No Harm Says Hsu

"Thinking Chinese are hoping for much good from the Washington Conference," said George Chien Hsu, president of the Supreme Court of the Kwangtung Government, at a banquet to forty newsmen held in the Great Eastern Hotel last night. "But we do hope that the United States, our greatest friend in the past, will not let us take harm from it."

And he turned to smile down upon three Japanese newspapermen sitting on his right. They smiled back in perfect good humor as Justice Hsu continued by saying that the people of China had perfect trust in the Japanese people, but as for the Japanese Government, it had better take care to mend its ways or Japan would be left high and dry on the shoals of an adverse world public opinion, without a friend on earth.

Justice Hsu is in Shanghai to meet the delegates to the Pacific Conference on behalf of the most important people's organizations of Anhui province. He resents Peking appointing any delegates at all, since the chief aim of China at the conference should be the recovery of rights ceded by that same Peking government under the 21 demands and the military pact made with Japan. His criticism of the United States is that while it was the first government to recognize China as a republic when the first parliament was formed, its attitude since has been to recognize the party in power regardless of its legality of tenure. Justice Hsu was heartily applauded throughout his interesting address by all the nationalities present, for his evident desire to be fair in his criticisms left few national heads without a bump.

tion regarding import and export licenses.

It is at present undecided whether the organization shall merely watch the issue of licenses and report any unfair discrimination to the Allies or whether it shall be fully empowered to veto licenses. British circles favor the former course. It is hoped that the question will shortly be settled and the economic sanctions removed.

JAPAN'S POLICY CHANGED

London, Sept. 18.—A long detailed exposition of the Japanese proposals regarding Shantung has been published here.

It concludes with the declaration that with the removal of the German and Russian menace from the Far East, Japan's policy towards China has been entirely changed. She now desires only to encourage Sino-Japanese trade to ensure the peaceful development of an entirely free and independent China.

WILL SAFEGUARD RUSSIA

Washington, Sept. 19.—The State Department has conveyed its assurances to the Russian people that legitimate Russian interests will be carefully safeguarded at the Washington Conference.

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, September 19.—Reports of a well organized campaign to force or entice China into direct negotiations on the Shantung issue, were circulated throughout Peking today when it became known that a foreign observer in a written statement to a group of Chinese gave what purported to be the details. The statement of the foreigner is said to be corroborated by that of a Chinese observer who recently returned from Tokyo.

The foreign observer in his statement called upon the student and other patriotic groups to assert themselves as they did in 1919 when China declined to sign the Treaty of Versailles.

If this is not done speedily, the Chinese will be blinded as to the big issues before the Washington Conference and be forced into direct negotiations which will give China the shell and Japan the kernel of Shantung.

PLAN PROPAGANDA

The principal objects of those behind the plot were said to be swinging of public sentiment toward Japan by means of a press campaign and the buying of influence wherever it could be obtained in that way.

While there were no reports of acceptances of any cash offers, it was said that the money was in Peking and waiting for writers, speakers and even men in the official class if they wanted it.

The foreigner who claimed to have the details of the plot wrote to friends in political circles saying that the students and all other patriotic citizens should be aroused to the danger and to the cleverness of Japan. The offer to return Shantung politically though reserving full economic control, was not made, he said in this letter, until the plot was completely planned in Japan.

"This plan," he said, "is to obtain the aid of all publications that can be influenced. They are to give their attention to a discussion of the agenda for the Pacific Conference and get public attention centered there. They are also to intimate daily in their editorials that America, instead of being friendly to China, is insincere and selfish and is already in conference with Japan regarding the final disposal of Shantung."

PLANS TO AID JAPAN

Soon after the plans for the Washington Conference were announced, an influential Chinese went to Tokyo and there conferred with prominent Japanese officials, the Chinese observer said, and the result was that the Chinese was convinced that direct negotiations should begin at once. This man is said to have promised the Japanese that he would do everything in his power to bring direct negotiation about and the Japanese on the other hand are said to have promised that any financial help needed would be supplied.

It was the understanding that where results could be obtained without undue influence, no money was to be offered or paid, according to the foreigner the funds being reserved for the hard spots.

The foreigner in his note to the Chinese says that Japanese are to be praised for the cleverness of their note which apparently offers to give Shantung back to China but which in reality leaves the province just as it is now.

Dr. J. C. Schurman, American Minister to China, called on the Vice-Minister of Foreign Affairs today and the two are said to have discussed some of the press reports regarding the Conference agenda. Dr. Schurman holding that some of the reports were incomplete and misleading to the extent of giving the impression that America has consulted with Japan about the various matters.

It was reported that the American Minister gave assurances that the agenda as announced is tentative and may be changed.

China Has Greatest Of All Sitting Armies

use to him as a chest-protector to a cherub. A missionary about to cross a bandit-infested country was presented with a group of infantry. When the soldiers appeared without rifles, the missionary demanded the reason.

"Oh, if we brought our rifles, the bandits would take them away from us," an officer naively explained.

Another traveler, spending the night at an abandoned inn, was annoyed by perpetual demands for candles made by the officer in charge of his escort. On asking the reason, the traveler was informed that the soldiers were afraid to stay in the dark.

Under the spell of religious emotion or swept by a belief in divine protection, the Chinese soldier fights as courageously as any warrior of Mohammed confident of a future in Paradise.

There are also troops, such as the model Regiment of Peking that keep up a high standard of efficiency; and there have been instances of Chinese who battled heroically on slender rations, far from the ministrations of the Red Cross. But such cases are comparatively rare.

Chinese soldiers strolling hand in hand down the highway, Chinese soldiers knocking off during a bombardment to drink tea, Chinese soldiers gracefully waving ladies' size fans, and Chinese soldiers practicing the goose-step with no definite idea of the difference between right and left are the phases of the army most generally in evidence.

But after all, lack of the military instinct hardly implies national inferiority.

Placed by popular opinion on one of the lowest rungs of the social scale, the military profession has small appeal for men of education.

Though the average Chinese mother obviously never raised her boy to be a soldier, China is certainly more popular internationally than another people we might name who are peculiarly gifted in this respect.

ready to proceed to Nantao for the purpose of protecting against the firing on ships and the seizure of the Shuhun, and also incidentally to carry a message from General Wu Peifu to pave the way for a further peace conference.

The captain of foreign steamers are refusing to proceed without proper escort. It is reported from a reliable source that three of five Chinese junks, chartered by Messrs. L. C. Gillespie and Sons and flying the Stars and Stripes, carrying wood-oil, were commandeered by the Szechuenese at Wanchien last Thursday and the cargo confiscated.

HAS HE A MISSION

Pien Shou-ching, Chihli Provincial Councillor, and Superintendent of the New Harbor Works of Tientsin, is in Shanghai. He arrived at Nanking last Friday from Tientsin and had an interview with Tsuchi Chih Shun of Kiangsu. A report is current that he has been entrusted with an important political mission.

(1) To confer with Tsuchis confidentially on the subject of an alliance between Kiangsu, Anhui and Kiangsi in order to check any united movement on the part of Chekiang, Shanghai and Tientsin.

(2) To investigate the trend of events in the South in order to revise counter moves.

(3) To seek a loan for financing the new harbor works of Tientsin.

(4) To find out how far the Mukden warlord has gone in entering an alliance of mutual support with the South.

(5) To discuss matters concerning the new cabinet to be put up to succeed the Chin Yun-peng Cabinet.

It is reported that in case Chang Chih-tan, Minister of Communications, should become premier, Pien will secure the portfolio of either the Minister of Communications or the Minister of Finance.

DEDICATION CEREMONY

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Sept. 19.—The formal opening of the new quarters of the Peking Union Medical College by Mr. J. D. Rockefeller, Junior, was held this afternoon. Several distinguished visitors representing educational and philanthropic institutions from all parts of the world attended.

The ceremony began with a most impressive procession of the faculty and official guests in the caps and gowns of many universities which formed a brilliant spectacle, with the lavishly decorative exterior of the buildings in the Chinese style of architecture as a gorgeous background. The dedication ceremony was held in the College's fine new Auditorium.

The invocation was pronounced by the Rev. J. Leighton Stuart of Peking University, after which the greetings of the President were conveyed by the Foreign Minister, Dr. W. W. Yen, and those of the Ministries of the Interior by Mr. Chi Yao-san and Dr. S. P. Chen, and Education by Mr. Ma Lian-yl.

Mr. Roger S. Greene, responding on behalf of the China Medical Board, of which he is the Resident Director, expressed the hope that the work of the Peking Union Medical College would tend to a greater understanding between nations, and perhaps pave the way for co-operation on wider lines for humanitarian purposes.

TELLS HOW IT STARTED

Mr. Rockefeller, Junior, on behalf of the Rockefeller Foundation, then recounted the circumstances leading up to the establishment of the Peking Union

Medical College, and emphasized its aim to guide and inspire the Chinese to a better standard of medical education, as the best means of alleviating the widespread suffering, due to ignorance, in China. He hoped for the day, he said, when the Peking Union Medical College would be largely staffed and supported by the Chinese.

In opening his address, Mr. Rockefeller read a message from his father, conveying his greetings to the Peking Union Medical College, and adding: "May all who enter, whether faculty or students, be fired with the spirit of service and sacrifice; and may the institution become an ever-widening influence for the promotion of the physical, mental and spiritual well-being of the Chinese nation."

French Municipal Council Will Regulate Exchanges After Making Investigation

Consul-General Will Grant No Further Permits Until Municipal Control Is Assured; Result Of Request From Peking Government

Until the adoption of regulations, which will fix the amount of municipal control necessary in the operation of commercial and stock exchanges no further permits will be granted to open such exchanges in the French Concession, according to H. Wilden, French Consul-General in Shanghai. This action has been taken in compliance with the urgent request of the Commissioner of Foreign Affairs representing the Peking Government.

The main reason for commercial exchanges is of but a few months growth. The commodities handled cover the range of Chinese products, silk, tea, cotton, piece goods, as well as foreign goods. Exchanges have sprung up like mushrooms, and the fluctuations of their stocks have caused great losses to the shareholders.

Cautious Chinese merchants who have not been caught in the craze point out that many firms operating exchanges hold their shares until the value soars to unmentionable heights, and then flood the market with them. When the natural slump occurs they buy up the same shares at a greatly reduced figure and attempt to repeat the process.

Mr. Wilden believes that any restriction of the freedom of Chinese merchants to be inadvisable, but the present methods of operating the exchanges make regulations imperative. The only restriction now in force is the requirement that a copy of the firm's statutes be filed with the Municipal Council before a permit to operate an exchange is issued.

It is not known what form the proposed regulations will take until a thorough investigation has been made. To that end Mr. Wilden has invited Chinese merchants and foreigners in the Concession to submit to him their opinions on the difficult question.

The Consul-General points out that a certain amount of municipal control of the numerous exchanges may avert the crash which Chinese merchants are predicting. He has been advised that an abrupt closing of the exchanges would cause such enormous losses to small shareholders that a panic would ensue. Therefore the steps taken toward regulation will be carefully considered before the measures are put into force.

OPEN VERDICT AT WATSON INQUEST

An open verdict was returned yesterday by British Coroner G. W. King at the conclusion of the inquest into the death of Arthur Watson, translator in the Municipal Health Department, whose body was found on the forenoon near Liping Road below the Point Four mill on September 13. The verdict was "found drowning."

Dr. C. L. Marsh testified regarding his examination of the body, expressing the opinion that Mr. Watson was drowned in clear water because of the condition of the stomach and lungs. Donald Rodrigues, who resided at 58 Avenue Road, where Watson made his home; John S. Graham of the Health Department, Inspector Thomas Mellows of the River Police, Sergeant Watson of the Yangtze Police, and Chief Detective Inspector John Burnside were the other witnesses.

ADMIRAL LINE GETS 'BAY STATE' FOR PACIFIC RUN

With the allocation of the liner Bay State to the Admiral Line by the United States Shipping Board, the Company will dispatch a steamer from Shanghai to Seattle every 18 days beginning early in January.

The Bay State, named for the state of Massachusetts, is the fourth of the 535-foot class allocated to the Admiral Line. The others are the Keystone State, Silver State and Wenatchee. The Bay State is scheduled to sail from Seattle on his maiden trip to the Far East on December 16 and is due to arrive in Shanghai on December 27.

The Admiral Line steamer Silver State sailed from Seattle last Saturday and is due to arrive here on October 4, the date that the Hawkeye State leaves here with the Chinese delegation of the Disarmament Conference. The Hawkeye State is only temporarily allocated to the Admiral line, making the trip scheduled for the Wenatchee, which is undergoing repairs and alterations.

Walter Mayo, Hotel Man, Visitor Here

Mr. Walter V. Mayo, who for years was presiding genius over the Stewart Hotel at San Francisco, later was in charge of the general cuisine of the string of hotels of the Territorial Hotel Company of Honolulu and recently has been with the Manila Hotel at Manila; is a visitor in Shanghai and plans to be here for several weeks. He last left the Astor House.

Mr. Mayo went from the old Jefferson Hotel at San Francisco to the Hotel Stewart in 1906 when it was established and it was largely due to his efforts and his wide acquaintance on the Pacific that the hotel in the next decade became the familiar stopping place of people from the Far East and particularly from Hawaii.

He was traveling steward of the four big hotels of the Territorial Hotel Company with headquarters at Honolulu for two years, after which he went to the Pacific Mail and about two years ago joined the staff of the Manila Hotel.

CORDILLERE NOT DAMAGED BADLY

Damage to the steamer Cordillere of the Messageries Maritimes, which was aground on the Tungsha Spit from August 22 to September 3, is limited to the broken rudder post, according to the local agent.

The Cordillere is in the Kiangnan dock near the Arsenal, and is expected to be ready for service by the end of October. Mechanics are overhauling her machinery, but up to yesterday no serious breakage had been discovered.

The joker in the list of terms is the condition that the Japanese government will withdraw its claim that Tsingtao be made an international or Japanese settlement if China recognises the property-holding rights of the vested interests already existing. In other words, the questionable transfer of German property under the leasehold to Japanese hands is to be made legal and permanent. Lands which Japanese subjects were encouraged to acquire at ridiculously low prices, practically all of Tsingtao, would remain Japanese even though a retrocession of the German leasehold to China would naturally indicate a return of the property rights in the district. Thus with the lease cancelled, Japan, through her property-holders, would own Tsingtao even more securely than under the lease conditions.

Russia will be the shadow over the Washington conference, a mysterious something which will threaten to undo many of the nice decisions made without her consent. It is recalled that the delegates to the Paris peace conference began their labors with the assertion that permanent peace was impossible without Russia's voice in the settlement. To that end suggestions were made for a meeting with the Soviets at Priekupe, which overture ended in a fiasco. Russia was therefore treated as non-existent, even though her armies were hailed as the saving "steam roller" many times in the early years of the war, and Russian territory was devastated far and wide by the Germans.

It was significant that no Russian marched in the peace parade under the Arc de Triomphe. Russian territories were lopped off in huge sections which became independent states. The answer given to Russian protests was that the debts incurred by the Czarist regime must be paid before Russians could have a voice in settling affairs which were neatly and particularly their own. Yet the Allied leaders understood very well that if Russia were given her just share of German reparations, her debts to the Allies would be cut-balanced in the scale. Considering that the reparations amount to all that Germany can pay, that the Allies are dividing the reparations among themselves, depriving Russia of her due, it might be said that the Allies are in debt to Russia.

Internal troubles prevented Russia from entering in the peace negotiations at Paris, but she is not bound to observe the terms of the Versailles treaty. Nor will she be bound to recognize agreements reached at Washington without her consent. Some day there will be a reckoning between Russia and the rest of the world, and that day will be when a Russian government acquires sufficient strength to enforce recognition and collect its due.

DYNAMITER BAND CAUGHT IN ACT OF HURLING BOMB

(Reuter's Service) Chicago, Sept. 19.—After six months' efforts to trace the perpetrators of numerous outrages, the police are now on the track of a dangerous gang of dynamiters as the result of an encounter today when 40 detectives waylaid a gang of dynamiters, the leader of whom was about to hurl a bomb at a shop when he was ordered to surrender. He flung the bomb however, wrecking the shop-front and immediately fell, riddled with bullets. The other members of the gang surrendered.

A subsequent search of the dynamiters' headquarters resulted in the discovery of 1,400 sticks of high explosive.

RECORD SCORES ARE MADE IN 1921 COMPETITIONS FOR THE ARETHUSA CUP

Collaco, Barrett and Luthy Register 100 Or Better

The Arethusa Cup presented by H.M.S. Arethusa to be competed for annually under the auspices of the Shanghai Rifle Association was held on Monday at 6:30 a.m. There were 51 entries and 46 competed. The weather conditions were very favorable and some record scores were registered.

Mr. A. M. Collaco, the energetic Secretary of the Assn. and Capt. Barrett put up a wonderful performance of 101 points out of a possible score of 105.

When the new targets were introduced in August last Mr. Collaco was the man to establish the mark for later competitors to work up to by recording 100, which was in itself very high. Yesterday he capped this by one point, winning this cup with a score of 101 points. Capt. E. I. M. Barrett was out of luck in equaling this record, but losing on the count out.

Appended are the results of Collaco's, Capt. Barrett's and C. Luthy's scores and also the full results of the competition which is very important when considering the selection of teams for the coming American Company Cup competition which will take place on Sunday at 2 p.m.

TILDEN BEATS JOHNSTON FOR NATIONAL TITLE

Retains Title Won In 1920 By Winning Three Straight Sets

(Reuter's Service)
Philadelphia, Sept. 19.—W. T. Tilden has retained the American National Lawn Tennis Championship, after meeting formidable foreign opponents. He finally defeated his compatriot, W. M. Johnston, 6-1, 6-3, 6-1.

The national championship play for 1921 spoken of in the foregoing telegram was almost a repetition of the finals of last year, when the same two men met for the premier tennis honor, and Tilden won over his opponent. Last year Johnston was defeated in five matches. This year in three. In the final play in 1919, Johnston won over Tilden.

Tilden ranks as America's No. 1, and Johnston is rated as No. 2. They were the winners of the Davis cup play over the Japanese pair, Shimidzu and Kumagae, which had won through the challenge rounds to the right to meet America for the trophy. The two Americans are perhaps the best individuals and the best pair of tennis players in the world.

Mlle. Lenglen Explains Mystery Of Her Collapse

BY A. WALLIS MYERS
(Tennis Editor of the London Field)

Perhaps I have some qualification to write intimately of the sensational match at Forest Hills recently. I have known Suzanne Lenglen since she was a young girl of 12. I played with her in mixed doubles in her first Riviera season and was her partner again at Cannes this year. Moreover, I have watched her perform in England, France and Belgium—seen every one of her successive triumphs, witnessed the genius in her development, analysed from very close quarters a temperament that Americans met for the first time recently.

First, I would say, definitely, that on her relative form Mrs. Mallory deserved to win and would have won in two sets if the French girl had not retired. Mrs. Mallory is a fighter to the last ditch. She goes on smilingly to the end. She played heroically in the Paris match against Suzanne, in which I took a line, and really deserved more than the five games she won. But in temperament she is quite different from the champion whom she defeated yesterday. She is Norwegian, with Norse persistency, cold bloodedness, activity and shrewdness.

Suzanne is a bundle of nervous sprightliness—volatile, excitable, essentially French, yet imbued with the spirit of modern sport, which France has sought to cultivate. Suzanne was not brought out with sporting girls as American and English girls were. Bombed out of her home near Lille when the Germans invaded and ransacked her country, she has lived for the last six years in southern Nice—a place far removed in tone and temper from New York. Suzanne has been the child wonder of French tennis; flattered without precedent, she has not yet been spoiled; tended almost every hour of her life by two fond parents, she has yet displayed an independence that has given her a mind and an expression of her own.

FATHER AGAINST TOUR
Suzanne's father did not want her to come to America just yet. He felt, for one thing, that she was not physically strong enough for this year for an exacting tour in a new country under strange conditions, and I believe M. Charles Lenglen will not be altogether surprised to hear that she has fallen to Mrs. Mallory in her first match. But it was felt by the French Association that as Tilden had come to Paris under some physical difficulty so Suzanne ought to go to New York. Suzanne shared this view and was the more pleased to undertake the mission when she knew that her own devastated area would benefit from it. But she knew as soon as she landed that she would not be in form at once. How could she be? No tournament match for six weeks, the longest sea voyage of her life and a bronchial trouble that reassured itself under the strain of yesterday's ordeal.

As I sat by her bedside last evening in the hotel at Forest Hills I realised that she was physically and mentally done in; that she was genuinely hors de

Suzanne shared this view and was the more pleased to undertake the mission when she knew that her own devastated area would benefit from it. But she knew as soon as she landed that she would not be in form at once. How could she be? No tournament match for six weeks, the longest sea voyage of her life and a bronchial trouble that reassured itself under the strain of yesterday's ordeal.

As I sat by her bedside last evening in the hotel at Forest Hills I realised that she was physically and mentally done in; that she was genuinely hors de combat. Why did she play at all? Here is her answer:

"I thought the American sporting public would be distressed if I did not turn out. I had promised to play. I thought I could stay the course—but I just couldn't. My chest felt like nothing on earth; I could scarcely breathe; I wonder I went on for nine games. In France my parents would not have allowed me to play at all. At Nice last year I wanted to defend my cup for the third year, but they vetoed my appearance."
She gave every credit to Mrs. Mallory. She admitted frankly that the present holder was better than she had anticipated; she had nothing but gratitude for the reception by the crowd, and was ever so disappointed she had to give up.

MANY CROSS THE CHANNEL TO JOIN IN FRENCH FETE

(Reuter's Service)
Paris, September 19.—The Franco-British festival has attracted to Boulogne-sur-Mer thousands of British visitors and large French crowds.

The 40 British mayors who are at present in Paris on their way to the devastated regions with a view to making practical arrangements for the relief and reconstruction of a number of towns and villages were entertained at a banquet by the municipality.

In the course of a speech, Senator Jonart, as President of the Franco-British Association, laid stress on the necessity for both nations to maintain close co-operation in the economic and intellectual fields. France, he declared, was impelled by no imperialistic ambitions; she was aiming only at industrial and agricultural restoration.

Paris, Sept. 17.—Under the auspices of the British League of Help, 45 British Mayors have arrived in Paris on their way to the devastated regions with a view to making practical arrangements for the relief and reconstruction of a number of towns and villages.

In welcoming the British visitors, the President of the Paris City Council stated that the Entente Cordiale was a natural alliance which nothing must alter.

The Mayor of Leeds in reply stated that the delegation truly represented the British people. Franco-British brotherhood was cemented on the battlefields, he said, and would outlast all political strifes and would stand for ever.

Consular Order Aimed To Prevent Spread Of Anthrax Restrictions Put On Shipments Of Hides And Skins Coming From Mukden

By reason of procedure the American Consular authorities at Mukden have been obliged to adopt in connection with shipments of hides and skins to guard against the spread of anthrax, an order has been issued from the American Consulate at Shanghai imposing restrictions on shipments of hides and skins. It is set forth in the following communication addressed by Mr. E. S. Cunningham, American Consul-General, to the United States Public Health Service:

"Dr. Julian Pett, United States Public Health Service—Shanghai, China." "Sir: Under date of September 9, 1921, the American Consul-General at Mukden, advised this office that:

"Since my tenure of office at Mukden I have consistently refused to issue any certificates of statements of the non-prevalence of anthrax in this Consular District as there is often reason to believe that the contrary may be the case. It is impossible for one to secure any definite information in this particular connection and I can no more than notify you of the attitude of this office in connection with the issuance of certificates or letters concerning the non-prevalence of anthrax."

"In view of this statement this office cannot any longer certify invoices covering hides and skins that originate in the Mukden Consular District unless the same have been disinfected in accordance with the Department's instructions, i.e., disinfected by immersion for not less than 24 hours in a 1 to 1,000 bichloride of mercury solution with Form No. 175 (a).

DIPLOMATS TELL CHINA SHE MUST STOP MUTINIES

Cabinet In Turn Wires To Tutchuns That They Will Be Held Responsible

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Peking, Sept. 17.—The Cabinet has sent a circular telegram to the provinces saying that the Government has received a note from the Portuguese Minister, as Doyen of the Diplomatic Body, stating that owing to the frequent mutinies of the part of Chinese soldiers, the lives and property of foreigners are often in jeopardy.

The Chinese Government, therefore, is requested to inform the high authorities concerned that they must bear full responsibility in future.

The Chinese Government, accordingly, informs the high officials in the various provinces that they must take every possible precaution against further outbreaks and warns them that they will be held responsible if such occur.

STEEL DISPUTE IN MIXED COURT

The recent sailing of Judge C. S. Lobingier, of the United States Court for China, to America, forced a civil action up for hearing yesterday at the International Mixed Court. Judge Lobingier had been agreed upon between the Robert Dollar Company and six Chinese firms as arbitrator in a dispute concerning the delivery of a contract between the Dollar Company for the delivery of certain steel plate cuttings under dispute.

About six months ago, according to counsel R. T. Bryan for the Robert Dollar Co., a contract for sale and delivery of the goods was entered into. When the cuttings arrived the defendants refused delivery claiming that the goods was not according to specification. Judge Lobingier was agreed upon as arbitrator. The judge sailed for America a few weeks ago, the dispute was brought to the Mixed Court for hearing.

Mr. Schoenfeld, on behalf of the Chinese firms, argued that the case be dismissed as the dispute had been submitted to arbitrators and it was no fault of his clients that the judge had left Shanghai before giving his award. They were willing to abide by the decision of the arbitrator and thought the action of the Robert Dollar Co. premature in attempting to push the case ahead. Judgment was reserved.

Macao Declines To Grant Loan To Portuguese Here

Project For New Institution Outlined In Interview With Mr. Alfredo Casanova, Consul-General

Of particular interest to Portuguese residents of Shanghai is an interview published in O Liberal, a weekly that is issued in Macao, with Mr. Alfredo Casanova, Consul-General for Portugal in Shanghai. The interview, which took place in the Macao Hotel is printed in the issue of O Liberal of September 10 and deals with the question of a loan of $200,000 to be used in the construction here of a building to be used as a Portuguese club.

"I have come here," Mr. Casanova is quoted as saying, "as well as my dear friend Mr. J. Nolasco (the latter representing the 'Shanghai Lusitano Club'), to ask Macao for monetary help for her sons in Shanghai."

"I have succeeded in bringing about a change in the registration of the 'Shanghai Lusitano Club' which will in the future become a Portuguese institution instead of continuing, as it is today, under the British flag. I have also succeeded in bringing about an amalgamation of the 'Portuguese Sporting Association' and the 'Club Portugues,' thus uniting these three institutions for the purpose of forming a new association, which will give the Portuguese community the prestige to which it is entitled and the respect of those who, for seeing it in a state of disunion, have at times ill-treated it."

"Union means strength: this is what I wish and have."

OUTLINES PLAN
"What both Mr. Nolasco and myself have come to Macao for, is to obtain from the Macao Government a loan for the purchase of a large piece of land and the construction of a big building for the new Portuguese association I have planned, which will have the character of a Club, with sporting games; barracks for the glorious Portuguese Co. S.V.C., who, for many years, has held the first place among the other Companies in Shanghai; a Chamber of Commerce (which never existed); a permanent exposition of Portuguese products; a co-operative society which will prove of great benefit to all Portuguese families; a pharmacy, where medicines will be sold at minimum prices to Portuguese associates only, who will have the right to free medical attendance, hospital, operations, and, in case of need, to residence in sanatoriums."

Suitable alike for children and adults, in 8 oz. sealed bottles. Price $6.00 per dozen, cash with order.

Portuguese colony of Macao; I do not ask anything for myself. I do not want anything for myself. I only want the Province of Macao to understand my aspirations and the responsibilities I have put on my own shoulders."

LOAN IS REFUSED
Following this interesting interview, it was ascertained that the Executive Council, to whom H. E. the Governor of Macao submitted Mr. Casanova's request, had decided not to grant the loan asked for on the ground that the colony of Macao had declined, not long ago, to render monetary assistance to the Province of Timor, and Portuguese India, and had likewise refused to grant a second loan to the 'Lusitano Club' of Hongkong.

O Liberal has protested against the attitude of the Macao Government and urged the 'Leal Senado da Camara' to annul the decision of the Executive Council.

John D. Finds: To Keep Healthy And Wise And Wealthy, Play Numerica

Also Gauges Guests' Minds With Cards, Says His Doctor, H. F. Biggar, Also 82

Cleveland, July 30.—Indigestion? Play Numerica and get well! That's John D. Rockefeller's recipe for the wellbeing of man's best asset toward longevity—the stomach.

Dr. H. F. Biggar, himself as old as the oil magnate—eighty-two—is authority for the statement. And Dr. Biggar should know, for he's been John D.'s personal physician for many, many years. Numerica is a mental exercise as well as a digestion aid and diversion, says Dr. Biggar. And, best of all, it can be played with the simplest of outfits—home-made at that, if one desires.

PLAYS TWICE DAILY
The world's richest man plays at least two games of Numerica daily, according to his physician. Whoever the guest, he, too, must play for at least two are necessary to play the game.

KEEN AT GAME, TOO!
Right after breakfast and directly after dinner the oil magnate orders the table cleared, and the Numerica layout brought in. Dr. Biggar tells. Then play begins on what to John D. is the most fascinating diversion he knows. Even golf pales for the time as his game progresses.

The richest man is a keen player, too, the doctor asserts, and takes great delight in winning over his opponent or opponents.

Any number may play at Numerica, the only limit being the number of "sets" in the outfit.

A Numerica "set" consists of thirteen squares of cardboard, each an inch square, numbered from one to thirteen, in easily distinguishable figures.

Each player is provided with four such sets, or fifty-two cards in all.

Usually each player's outfit is of a different color, such as red, green, white, yellow, blue so that they may be the more easily sorted ed when the same is finished, or a new one started. For all intents and purposes, however, they could all be the same color.

ONE PLAYER CALLS OUT
One player is selected to "call" numbers. His cards are placed face or number side down on the board and shuffled about.

The other players arrange their four "sets" into thirteen piles, face or number side up. All ones are in one pile, all twos in another and so on to thirteen.

Play is then commenced. The player selected to "call" draws a card at random from his shuffled, face-down pack and "calls" it—telling the other players its number.

WHERE SKILL COMES IN
Each player removes the number from his lay-out and puts it to one side to build up "stacks." Each built up "stack" consists of thirteen cards ranging from one to thirteen. The "stack" is built up from the number one card; consecutively to number thirteen.

If the card cannot be built on a "stack" it may be laid on the table in any one of four rows. It is in the building of these rows, from which the "stacks" may be filled, that the skill of the game lies.

The player who "calls" also builds or attempts to build "stacks" with the test in the game.

When the last card is called, the game is ended and stock is taken of the results.

HOW WINNER IS FOUND
If a player has succeeded in building up all four of his possible "stacks," one to thirteen in each one, he is declared winner. Should no player complete the four "stacks," the cards remaining on the table are counted. The results are each subtracted from 52, the number of cards in each layout, and the high score, or the player who has built up the largest number of cards, wins.

The game really is a great deal like solitaire, although it may be played by any number of persons. The four rows of discarded might, by chance, during the game, be arranged in this fashion, reading from right to left and also from bottom up:

10 8 7 5
13 11 9

And here is the original layout of the 13 piles:

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13

HOW TO PICK CARDS
Cards may not be taken from the middle of a row. They may be taken only from the right end or the bottom. Work toward the left or toward the top never toward the right or toward the bottom.

At the end of the call, let us say player A has 12 cards still face up and not in stacks. Player B has 5 unused. Player C has 15 left, and the caller, Player D, has 21 left. The score:

A—49 C—37
B—47 D—31

Player B, with the greatest number of cards in stacks, wins. TELLS ROCKEFELLER'S VIEWS
The player to left of call takes the cards for next call and another game is begun.

Dr. Biggar said: "A game after breakfast and one after dinner is Mr. Rockefeller's idea of an ideal way to let one's meal digest in peace."

"The game, Mr. Rockefeller says, is the one thing that has kept his mind off his digestion and his digestion off his mind. "Undoubtedly, it is a good game, and well fitted for its purpose of a light diversion after a meal."

"Mr. Rockefeller many times will use his game as a test of men. He puts great trust in his reading of mental equipment of his guests by the sort of Numerica they play. To him a quick grasping of the fundamentals of the game and a keen interest in its playing, means worthwhile mental equipment."

Dr. Biggar is a doctor of the "old school." His hair is silver white, his cheeks ruddy and his skin firm. He looks about fifty-five. His voice is pleasant.

The doctor is certain he and John D. will live to reach the century mark by their present mode of conserving health—and playing Numerica.

Activities Of The China

Medical Board

BY ROGER S. GREENE

FOR graduate students not holding regular appointments in the Peking Union Medical College the China Medical Board provides a limited number of fellowships, sufficient to cover tuition and maintenance, and in some cases travelling expenses also. In a few cases very encouraging reports have been received of the value of this graduate training, and now that the College has moved into its new quarters and has the larger part of its staff at work, it should be possible to render better service in this as in other branches of its activities. The special graduate courses for practitioners are being given mainly at the Chinese New Year and during the summer vacation.

A most important branch of the work of the college is the Nurses Training School, which hopes to give to Chinese young women an education in nursing comparable to that offered in our best hospitals in the United States.

Middle School graduation or its equivalent, and a working knowledge of English are required for admission to the four-year course. The first year is devoted to work in the class-room and laboratory, and includes science courses in the pre-medical school. In the remaining years practical work in the wards is combined with the instruction in theory. The aim is to turn out nurses who shall be prepared to take positions of responsibility in teaching and other hospitals on an equality with nurses trained abroad.

The fact that many institutions have been unable to secure foreign nurses, even when their support was assured, indicates the urgent need for Chinese of equal training, whose broad educational background will enable them to command the respect which the nursing department of a hospital must have if it is to play the part that it should. Graduate students will be admitted also to the Nurses' Training School, and some of these, who have a good command of English, may be given scholarships for study abroad, if the quality of their work at the Peking School seems to justify the expense.

A department of Dietetics has been organized and chemical studies are being made of all important Chinese foods, in order that hospital diets may be intelligently selected. Some instruction in dietetics is given to the pupil nurses, and informal courses may be arranged for others desiring to specialize in this subject.

While devoting its energies and its resources mainly to the Peking School, the Board has been much interested also in the development of other institutions. In particular grants have been made to the Hunan Yafe College of Medicine, and to the Shantung Christian University School of Medicine, of which the former like the Peking School, teaches in English, while the Shantung School teaches in Chinese. Small grants have also been made to the Pennsylvania Medical School of St. John's University, and to the National Medical College, a government school at Peking.

The Hunan and Shantung schools have also been able to secure much more support than before from sources other than the China Medical Board, and though they still have many urgent needs, they have made such good use of their funds and have worked so constantly for higher standards, that they should undoubtedly look forward to a future of great usefulness. Teachers from these schools when on furlough have held junior teaching appointments in some of our best American medical schools, thus gaining useful experience and at the same time helping to win recognition for the institutions from which they come. In many cases the China Medical Board has given fellowships to teachers in medical schools other than the Peking School in order to enable them to carry on systematic study in their respective departments during their furlough years.

The medical profession of China, has thus far labored under the serious handicap of not having any common language medium for scientific intercourse. There has been no generally accepted medical terminology in Chinese and the groups trained abroad or in China under the influence of different foreign nationalities naturally cling to the language of their teachers, having no other satisfactory means of expression. At the initiative of the China Medical Missionary Association a joint terminology committee has been organized, representing different groups, which has now made great progress in preparing an official terminology for the medical and pre-medical sciences.

Government institutions are now taking a leading part in the work, and the new terms are published with the sanction of the Ministry of Education. The China Medical Board has assisted in this enterprise and in the work of producing a medical literature in Chinese, through grants to the China Medical Missionary Association and the National Medical Association of China.

No special institution devoted entirely to research has been contemplated, but it is expected that teachers in the medical schools will in time be able to make important original contributions to medical science, as it has been the intention in the Peking School to give the teachers a certain amount of opportunity for such work. The China Medical Missionary Association also has a research committee, with which the teachers at Peking co-operate. Through this organization it may be possible, by the coordination of the efforts of a wide circle of independent workers, to secure some results of real value.

Much attention has been devoted to the raising of hospital standards in China, for the work of medical education may be largely wasted unless there are opportunities for young doctors to practice their profession under favorable circumstances. Similar waste is, often observed in the case of Chinese with a highly technical training in other branches returning to their native land to find no suitable employment in their specialties, and no older colleagues with long practical experience to give them the guidance that they need.

The leading position taken by the Missionary societies in medical work in China has been recognized and the attempt has been made to co-operate with them by strengthening the hands of their doctors and nurses, thus conserving a most important force for medical progress. It was obviously impossible to co-operate effectively with all the 300 or more mission medical centers in China, and the general policy has therefore been to aid first those hospitals near the principal medical schools and to establish an intimate though wholly informal relationship between them and the schools.

Preference has also been given to institutions located in important cities with good prospects for securing local support, and to those already possessing a good nucleus in staff, equipment or buildings, as it was felt that in such cases the relatively small contributions which the China Medical Board could make would produce the largest results. The aid given has taken the form of contributions to support of additional staff, to general maintenance expenses, and to improvements in buildings and equipment. Of late such contributions have not amounted to more than half of the total sum required for the proposed additions and improvements, the remainder being supplied by the mission. Up to June 30, 1921, grants of this kind had been made to 30 mission hospitals and 1 purely Chinese institution.

Not only have the mission contributions to these hospitals increased, but in many cases the improvements made have made it possible to secure increased Chinese support. The China Medical Board has also given to a large number of doctors in mission hospital work grants in aid towards the cost of graduate study while they are on furlough. The great work that missionary doctors have done in the relief of immediate suffering speaks for itself and needs no further comment. While the ordinary mission hospital has many serious deficiencies, it has one element of strength, not often shared by equally small institutions at home, in that it has the full time of one and sometimes two or three experienced doctors devoted entirely to its interests, and the staff usually live so near the hospital that the patients have practically the advantage of a resident physician constantly on call.

One of the most important achievements of the mission hospital has been the creation of popular confidence in Western medicine which has enabled the physician in time of epidemic to assist in the protection of the people far more effectively than he could otherwise have done. In places where there have been no hospitals, popular distrust has made effective campaigns against plague and other epidemics extremely difficult and often impossible. Appeals to mission doctors for help in such emergencies are constantly becoming more common, and their advice is frequently sought on matters of hygiene in government institutions.

As yet no separate effort has been made by the China Medical Board in the matter of popular education in public health matters. Much has been done by individual physicians, and by the China Medical Missionary Association in co-operation with other bodies, and in the future the medical schools will doubtless be able to assist materially.

The need of fostering high standards of professional ethics and spreading the Christian ideals of service is recognised, for without them it is doubtful whether even the scientific aims of the work can be satisfactorily attained, and this need is constantly kept in mind in selecting men and women for service in China who may set a helpful example to their Chinese associates and students.

Topics In Brief

A season of depression has its disadvantages, but sellers no longer assume a bored and forbidding air when you offer to buy something.—Youngstown Vindicator.

Beating swords into plowshares won't make the world entirely safe. There will still be fools who will try to beat trains to a crossing.—Akron Beacon Journal.

THE POLO BOOM

Bruce Hopper tells us that polo was played in China before England had passed out of its primitive stage, and before America or Columbus had been thought of. I suppose the writer was prevailed upon to type his interesting article because he found that scores of young and old boys, able to keep a safe seat on a Chinese pony, were frequenting the race course night after night and pursuing the ball with something that looked like a croquet mallet. Polo has never had so many players in Shanghai as it has had this year. Lawn bowlers must look out or the popularity of the biased balls will be beaten by the combination of gee-gee, mallet and wooden spheroid.

But it is not only in Shanghai that polo has become the rage. Of course a good deal of its appeal locally is due to the inter-port game against Hongkong shortly, and I read that former Governor Forbes of the Philippines has been giving Hongkong a little practice. In England automatic Hurlingham this year became democratic enough to erect stands that would allow 10,000 outsiders to see England's four meet and lose to America's quartette. As a matter of fact over sixty thousand people turned out to see the great games in the Old Country.

So polo is booming! It is booming! Let me give my readers some idea of the game that is so rapidly taking its place in popularity with ludo, telephoning, shove ha'penny and other sports.

Polo (which is pronounced as spelt—it is the only thing aristocratic that is pronounced as spelt) is a game that had its origin in the East. Once you grasp the fact that polo is derived from the Arabic word polo, and which just means polo, there is really no earthly reason why you should mix it up with Marco Polo, the explorer; with Eddie Polo, the cinema artist; or with Paolo and Francesca, whose lamentable love affairs ought to convince bachelors that they should remain solo.

The common or garden reader should at once grasp the fact that polo differs from games like pool, poker, patience, and pills in that it is played on horseback, or ponyback, and requires almost a municipal salary to indulge in. The field upon which it is played should be three hundred yards long and about two hundred yards wide; but it would be just as exciting if the field were two hundred yards long and three hundred yards wide.

The principal object of the game is to score goals. To do this, at either end of the field goal-posts are erected—but I have never seen any goalkeeper in either—and then with the aid of a mallet it is necessary to hit the ball (which is merely a piece of wood rounded) accurately enough to send it through the goal which has no goalkeeper.

Please remember that the player is well off the ground all through the game, unless he cannot keep his knees firm, and naturally this entails some difficulty in the choice of clubs. For instance if the player is a six footer, and his pony is an average height, I suppose he wants a mallet about six foot thirteen hands high—but I am not sure about this.

Let the player be as good as he may be, the principal thing that is necessary is a good mount. It is not the slightest use trying to play the game on an elephant, or a kangaroo, or a Sochow donkey, or yet again a camel. You must have a pony of intelligence. It must be capable of beating any Shanghai flogger at one-stepping, fox-trotting, waltzing or toddling. At a moment's notice it should be capable of twiddling around on one leg in a style that would put the most famous of Russian dancers to shame. If the pony has sufficient intelligence it might prove useful, when its own goal was savagely attacked, if it could manage to grab the ball in its teeth and swallow it.

Now this might lead many of my readers earnestly to desire—as the preacher says—to attempt polo. But my friends do be careful. You must have some facility to keep your seat on the pony, and therefore before taking the plunge let me advise you to take a course at some good correspondence college, and then follow it up with a week or two with Pelmans. What you have learned in the former you ought to forget in the latter. Yes! Polo is the game of the future, as it was the game of the past. So keep up with the times. Get on a pony. Grab it round its shaggy neck—and above all stick to the main chance—in other words the shaggy neck.

The High Road To Health

BY BRICE BELDEN, M. D.

Billions of dollars are wasted annually on more or less superfluous and worthless foodstuffs, not to speak of the waste of health and life involved. Overburdening of the liver and kidneys with an excess of protein, chiefly in the form of meat, accounts for an enormous amount of disease.

The protein fiend is also likely to suffer from diseases due to deficiency of lime, iron and vitamins, since his devotion to meat is apt to make him disdain such elements in his food.

Our daily habits are the foundation upon which we train for either health or disease. Upon them depends our physical destiny. Among the most important of these habits is that of eating, if people would eat less meat and more spinach, salads and milk one of their habits would be considerably improved. They need to move in the direction of dietetic simplification.

It is a fact that during the war certain diseases disappeared from Germany because of simpler habits of living. The diet was low in protein, no coffee was to be had, the beer contained but little alcohol, and the bread eaten was coarse.

We, on the contrary, are now suffering from too much food consumption of the wrong kind. The American's average daily dose of caffeine in his coffee is four grains. And this is not saying anything about his four grains of nicotine; but that is another story.

Turquoise—Phosphate of aluminum. All of these gems with the single exception named, owe their colors to impurities, and not one of them is an unmixed element except the diamond. Yet the splendor of the single color exhibited by a fine emerald, sapphire, topaz or ruby is often as effective that the market price of any of these stones may in particular cases, exceed that of diamonds. These softer stones also lend themselves to the gem-carver's art. Emerald has sometimes been cut into various forms. Nero is said to have had an emerald lens which he wore in a ring. There is at Florence, Italy, a miniature portrait of Ludovico Sforza carved out of a ruby.

The Emerald

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

(Famous Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Subjects of Popular Interest)

A correspondent asks where emeralds originally came from; whether they are next in hardness to the diamond, and which are the most valuable. The ancients obtained their emeralds mainly from Upper Egypt, along the western borders of the Red Sea. But since the discovery of America the principal source of fine emeralds has been at Muzo, near Bogota, in the Republic of Colombia, where a mine has been worked for the last three centuries. Emeralds do not rank next to the diamond in hardness, that place of honor being taken by sapphires. They may dispute the third place with topaz, but they are more certainly ranked fourth, coming between quartz and topaz. It is usual to reckon the hardness of minerals on a scale of 10. The diamond stands at the top, with 10 points; the sapphire is credited with 9 points, the topaz with 8, the emerald with 7½ to 8, and quartz with 7. The characteristic color of emeralds is brilliant, vivid green. The shades vary somewhat, but only an expert can select among them. The emerald is a variety of the mineral called beryl, whose transparent specimens are also valued as gems. It is a silicate of aluminum combined with the rare element glucinum beryllium. The colors of beryls are green, blue, yellow, white and reddish. The peculiar rich green of the emerald is due to the presence of a small amount of oxide of chromium. Emeralds, on account of the rarity of the best specimens, are often sold at prices as high as those of diamonds of equal or even greater size. There is a bluish-green variety of the beryl known as aquamarine, a gem of much less value than the emerald, which is found in many places, including Maine, New Hampshire, North Carolina and Colorado. Opaque crystals of beryl occasionally attain an enormous size. There is a specimen, found at Gratton, N. H., which weighs 2,900 pounds, and others weighing a ton or more are known. Of course, these masses, although composed of the mineral beryl, have no value as gems. Other semi-transparent crystals of beryl attain several pounds in weight. It is an interesting fact that all the most precious stones, except the diamond, are compounds of the common element aluminum. The diamond stands by itself in not being a compound, but a pure element (carbon), in the form of a transparent crystal. The hardest of all known things, it is also the most brilliant, depending for its beauty not upon accidental colors derived from extraneous sources and chemical blending, but solely upon its own marvellous power of splitting up and dispersing the light waves, and displaying their gorgeous spectral colors. It is a natural spectroscope. The great aluminum gems, on the other hand, owe their beauty mainly to inherent colors so that each of them is monochromatic. The curious fact just referred to, viz., that, except the diamond, all the finest jewel stones are based upon aluminum, comes out clearly in the following list. Diamond—pure crystallised carbon. Sapphire and Ruby—Oxide of aluminum, colored by traces of metallic oxides. Emeralds and Beryls—Silicate of aluminum and glucinum. Chrysoberyl—Compound of aluminum and glucinum. Topaz—Complicated silicate of aluminum. Garnet—Silicate of aluminum.

The Ideal Method

The Electric Oven, being free from the fumes of combustion does not require to be ventilated, therefore food cooked in it retains its flavour, the natural gases from cooked meat are not carried away through flues but retained in the oven. A clear, uniform heat is maintained which has the effect of closing up the surface of the meat or poultry, thus preventing loss by evaporation.

WALLACE REID

in

"THE SOURCE"

A Woman Brought Him New Life

Her eyes drifted over his ragged, neglected clothes; they lifted to his unclean face covered with its week-old beard.

His eyes met hers and he knew she loathed him.

Yet, before many months she loved him because the look in her eyes had given the Knight of the Road a new grip on life, and he had found himself.

"Don't Cry Little Girl, Don't Cry"—

She was the Superintendent's daughter, and had been taught not to converse with bums. How had he gone to bed in Boston, and woke up in her Dad's lumber yard? Did the Girl know this? She didn't care for the big "Loggers" friendship—but that was before the great fight, the wonderful fight, and the exquisite, never-to-be-forgotten night of nights that followed!
